

For a training to be most effective, the opening of the presentation means a great deal to the setting it creates for everyone. For this reason, please stay true to the precise wording of the below introduction – this introduction has been found to create a strong response from military members and civilians for getting them in the right frame of mind. Please try not to add any discussion about sexual assault or rape prior to Mike’s training beginning. One of the reasons audiences say Mike’s opening is so powerful is that they never feel like they are about to hear a “typical” sexual assault or rape awareness lecture.

Before we get started, please raise your right hand. Now with that hand, grab your cell phone . . . and TURN IT ON TO VIBRATE.

Today's show will involve the discussion of intimacy and sexual decision-making. While lots of the show will be fun, there will also be serious matters discussed. For this reason, if any part of the program makes you uncomfortable, advocates will be available at the back of the room to talk with at any time during the show. Now, lets get started . . .

Get Ready!! When it comes to intimacy and getting what you want, you are about to engage in a fun conversation we typically do not have in the military.

In today’s training, there will be NO POWERPOINT and NO STATISTICS. Our special guest travels the world speaking with TENS OF THOUSANDS of people each year and reaching millions more via TV, Radio, and Media appearances – including being on Dateline NBC. On military installations, he is one of the most popular speakers.

Prepare to get involved by standing up and giving a warm & WILD welcome to . . . Mike “Dom ish” (pronounced "Amish" with a "D" as d-amish).
