High School Students attending the "SAFER Choices" Program presented by Mike Domitrz.

What are you going to use from today's program?	How would you describe this session to someone who wasn't here?
- Affirming boundaries over being kind! - Asking for consent - Saying no when I don't feel like it - Stopping a sexual assault when I can	- always ask for consent - accept rejection - stand up for anyone who cannot
- How to intervene when some one is in danger - How to ask before doing something sexual or not	- always ask for consent and respect people's decision - stand up for people in vulnerable state
- I am going to ask first. - I am going to intervene if a see a situation that could lead to sexual assault. - I am going to make sure that those I care about know that I am there for them.	- ask first before kissing a partner - stand up for others - respect your partner's answer - it's ok to say no
- Not being afraid to say no - Learning that confirmation is important - Taking the initiative when others are in dangerous situations	- Consent is a human right - No is a respectful answer
-ask first -be comfortable with say no	- high energy - teaching high schoolers how to recognize and stop sa - teaching how to say no and ask for consent
-ask for consent -no is not mean -intervene	- no is not mean - help people who are in need of it - have courage to tell people to stop even if you're not necessarily affected

-I'll ask first -be more respectful -confront if I'm worried sexual assault could be going on	- what is sexual harassment - body language - ask first verbally - create safe place for everyone
-intervening when I notice signs of sexual assault -voicing boundaries and respecting consent for myself and others	-about consent -saying no -intervening in potentially dangerous situations
-not awkward to ask for permission -tell loved ones I am here for them -always look out for other people in	-Always ask first -SA is never okay -You don't owe anyone anything
-respect everyone -the 4 steps to stop sexual assault at a party -telling a loved one I will always be there for them and if they share, I'll thank them for sharing	-Always ask for consent -"NO" is always an answer -Step up and stop what you see is wrong
-stopping others from sexually assaulting another person -using the right terminology (raped instead of taking advantage)	-body language is a signal not an answer -always ask first -don't assume consent, it can change day to day -you can say no/ don't be afraid to say no -awkward is fine- consent doesn't make things awkward -call it what it is (using sexual assault and rape when described situations) -being a support system for others
'Because this is who I am' or 'that is not who I am'	-consent is important -ask first (ur awkward anyway) -you can revoke consent -If someone dosnt want to respect your consent they are not worth your time
" No" isn't mean	-dont rely on body language -always ask -every survivor is strong -look out for others -hold others responsible
"Always Ask" And "No Means No"	-enlightening -informative -respect boundaries!!!
"Ask first"	-hollywood and other media do not have an accurate depiction of consent -every human being deserves respect. You need to stand up for people who are in risk of sexual assault -its not awkward to ask. You can never predict someone's intentions by body language. So, always ask someone before doing something sexually towards them
"Asking the question" to ask for consent from a partner	"A fun and educational program. One every teenager my age needs."

After the discourse, I've realized how crucial it is to maintain respect and consideration for all, and to keep a rational perspective in ones life instead of letting intense emotions get in the way of making moral decisions. I also realized how atrocious sexual assault is, and the urgent need of it coming to an end. It never will for good, for humans are imperfect, but we can at least provoke awareness for the victims of these horrible acts and how we are ought to help them in any way we can. At the moment, by stopping the predator, but for future circumstances, if the victim had some fault to the event, have them realize the felony taken place and how they can prevent it from happening again. Thus, whenever I encounter a situation where personal boundaries are being broken, whether I am part of it or not, I will keep firm the morality that needs to be established and act accordingly. Conviction and strong defense is needed in circumstances like so. But, because I tend to not outspoken, and thus may impede myself from standing up for the victim at the moment, I'll strengthen the moral values of justice and respect, and put myself in the shoes of the victim to realize what harm is being done. dont know	I lesson about why you always need to use consent in sexual situations and how to help others in sexual situations
Dont rely on body language	I lesson on sexual assault and how to have more confidence in asking the question "can I kiss you"
dont rely on body language to make a move	I liked it dont say yes when i really wanna say no	i liked it
Dont take advantage of people while under influence	I loved how this was interactive
Dont use assumptions	i loved it
drink less	I loved it and Mike is great
Drunk people can not consent	i missed out man
Drunk people cannot consent	I only saw half
E book	i plead the fifth
Ebook	I probably would say that it was a thing about how to get consent
Ebook to discuss with my teenage daughters.	I really don't know if I'm being honest but I would tell them that from now on they should ask before they do anything and they should always try to be there when people need them.
Educate my children	I really don't know, Mike was very good though.
educate others	I really enjoyed the speaker and how he made the presentation fun.
Educate others	i recommend it
Educate othets	I recommend it to you because you can learn more health skills.
Educated language on how to address sexual assault situations	I recorded some of it but I'd mostly explain it ngl
Educating	I recorded the whole thing
Educating myself on the struggles other people may be facing such as Sexual Assault.	I riveting experience.
Education and availability for survivors	I say the session was about consent and how to say no
Eferything	I session on the choices and actions in adolescence specifically on the right actions and approaches of sexual behavior.
embrace awkwardness	I shouldn't have to describe this because I hope my friends think this is common morals and sense
Embrace awkwardness	I t was a great lecture about consent and what to do In adult situations
Embrace awkwardness	I talked about asking first and consent.
Embrace awkwardness	I talked about the importance of consent in different situations and why consent isn't always enough because of other variables such as drugs, alcohol, etc. and how it can be taken away at any point.
Embrace awkwardness	i thing when we described why we should ask for consent and how.
embrace awkwardness	I think everyone should have this conversation, and talk about this material.
Embrace awkwardness as it's more respectful to my partner	I think I would describe it as useful and important
Embrace awkwardness. Ask before.	I think I would describe it as very thoughtful, making you reflect on things that originally felt normal or normalized. I personally reflected a lot on my past experiences, and I think it made everyone reflect in a similar way.
embrace the awkward	I think I would say it taught me how to behave around anyone, not just people I have a relationship with. I would talk about the respect you should show anyone and everyone which can be applied to anything in your day-to-day experiences.
Embrace the awkward	I think I wouldn't describe it, I would have a talk with them
Embrace the awkward	I think is would be good knowledge to know if you don't already know these things
Embrace the awkward.	I think it is something all schools need.
Embrace the awkwardness	i think it was a very educational assembly on just what everyone really should know or learn
Embrace the awkwardness	I think it was both entertaining and informing and it was really necessary for a lot of people to hear
Embrace the awkwardness	I think it was good because it taught people how to ask for consent
Embrace the awkwardness	I think it was helpful and thoughtful, and helps you learn about consent and respect.
Embrace the awkwardness and always ask before doing.	I think it was incredibly informative and it was nice to be able to actually listen and discuss something of this nature. It is covered up so many times
Embrace the awkwardness.	I think it was very impactful and engaging. It taught about the importance of consent and healthy relationships.
Embrace the awkwardness.	I think it was very important for people our age.
Embracing awkwardness is true confidence!	I think it was very inspiring and that there is always going to be someone there for you.
Embracing awkwardness, standing up for others.	I think it was very powerful. It was one of the first times I've really thought about SA in this critical of a way.
Embracing who I am	I think it's super helpful and I learned a lot of new things.
Emphasize respect in conversations about sexual assault.	I think that I would describe the session as a conversation about sexual assault and asking about consent, making sure people are aware about the age of consent.
Empower my students to speak up both for themselves and for others.	I think that it was fun and dynamic and I enjoyed it more than I thought I would. It was really informative and I think it was worth the time.
Encourage people to ask - no means no	I think that they would lose a valuable experience to learn if they ever made the mistake to not ask for consent.
Encouraging good habits from peers	I think this was fun and informational
Encouraging survivors	I thought it was a great experience and especially on the weekend needed to be said as many may be sexually assaulted on this weekend specifically.
end sexual assault	I thought it was fun and taught some really good examples with fun activities
Engage when someone is in a difficult spot.	I thought it was informative and there was a good vibe to it.
Enhance communication between people	I thought it was insightful
Ensure all parties consent	I thought it was interesting, and it is very important for people to experience.
Ensure people around me end up going home safe when I feel and see something wrong, I'll make it my business	I thought the presentation was effective and important for students to hear. I believe that the conversation was reaffirming for those that are doing what's right and/or have been afraid to stand up and support others. I hope the program will impact students that don't stand up for others and "go for it" to consider changing their behavior. I do find the questions to be written as though students do "not do choose what's right." I am that person and have raised my children to be "that person" that stands up and speaks out/seeks help. I know from experience that our school has students on campus that are "that person" and do what's right. I think two groups will select the neither agree/not disagree answer - those that are doing what's right and those that choose not to change their predator behavior. The point of the survey is to know how many students will act differently (good or bad), it does the job. I think it would be helpful to have a question that asks students to identify what kind of person they would decribe themselves as before hearing you speak.
Ensure that students know I am here to support them and to encourage them to advocate for themselves and others.	I thought this was very eye opening and applied to all audiences. You MUST ask for consent so there is not "miscommunications" and to keep everyone safe. Also, be a support for those who may have been assaulted sexually.
Ensuring I'm never a victim of something I did not consent to. And stand up for myself if I don't like what someone is doing	I was a good life lesson
Ensuring mutual agreement	I was a informational gathering to learn about asking for consent
Ensuring that my loved ones and others in my community feel safe and supported by telling them that I'm here for them	I was a very good speech
ensuring the asking of questions before any and every action.	I was a very informative/engaging experience on how consent in important
Erase preconceived notions regarding amount of partners, especially about superiority.	I was able to learn a lot of about sexual assault and its impact on people. I learned to always help people if they are in a dangerous situation. I learned the importance of consent.
Errtnag he talked about	I was describe that I was received life advice for intimacy and choices
errythang	I was describe this session as amazing, funny, engaging, and brilliant.
Especially make sure that it is consisted not under the influence	I was serious but entertaining.
Even if it doesn't pertain to romantic relationships, I learned a great deal of how to manage my connections, self control, and my esteem.	I was texting my girlfriend across state about this and it was alright but that asking part is not always the best.
Even if it feels right ask to make sure	I was very engaging and interactive with the responses to the questions.
even if someone has said yes in the past, it doesn't mean yes in the future.	I was very informative and helpful.
Even if the moment is awkward it's not always going to stay that way	I wasn't comfortable in this assembly
Even outside of sexual intentions, learn to say and use no for myself and respect.	i wasn't here for very long so i'm not sure. apologies
Even tho I'm a victim I'm still strong.	I wasn't there
Even tho I'm a victim I'm still strong.	I wasn't there for most of it
Even though I make it a point to ask for consent before anything, I will continue to do so with my partner.	I will briefly describe each topic we went over.

How to tell people I'm here for them	I'd summarize the idea of standing up for others and being comfortable with saying no
How to tell someone that you really love the	I'd talk about how you should ask, stop, no isn't mean and briefly go over to what the speaker said
How to tell someone to stop doing something	I'd tell them how important consent is in any aspect of a relationship, and how important it is to be there for a survivor.
how to treat my peers	I'd tell them how to deal with making the first move and what to do if you're raped, etc.
How to treat people with respect and to use consent.	I'd tell them it's better to ask than to be ambitious
How to treat victims correctly	I'd tell them that it doesn't matter race, sexual orientation, everyone deserves to be protected and understood. and to help others when you see a problem, as well as asking first no matter what.
how to understand and communicate with people who have been through this	I'd tell them that it was about telling people that it's okay to say no and to ask first, and to tell people to be there for others.
How to use consent	I'd tell them the key things we talked about, which was consent. Then I'd say two or three of the most important things about it

How to use consent	I'd tell them to ask first and respect no as an answer
How to use consent properly	i'd tell them we learned about proper consent and how to ask for it
How to use consent, with a partner and how I will always ask before doing.	I'd try to summarize the asking first part first. Then part about everybody, no judgement
How to use content.	I'll detail everything that was mentioned but I can't put into words how much brain development this assembly causes lol
HOW TP ASK TO KISS MY PARTNER.	I'll tell them all the things that we talk about, like asking before doing something and also check to see if anyone is going or trying to assault them, and also I'm gonna tell them to let me know if they need some support if they are going through something.
How you ask consent, and knowing that saying no is not inherently mean	I'll tell them i will be here for them if someone sexual assaults them.
How you can intervene.	I'll tell them it was very mind blowing because it changed the way we see sexual relationships, and that consent is the minimum you should have when having a sexual relationship
https://gy873L02Bwfj2tvk3BLS24mvs2ig2rg.com/file/download	I'll tell them the most important part huh	I'll tell them to watch the YouTube vid that they posted a month ago
huh	I'm going to talk about giving consent
huh	I'm going to tell them about the importance of consent, how to respond to a survivor, and how to ask consent.
human beings deserve respect	I'm not even sure why we had this
Humanize everybody	i'm not really sure
I	I'm not sure
I actually follow the things the program said allready but it was a cool presentation nonetheless.	I'm not sure
I already ask my partner before kissing and more and I don't go to parties so I don't know	I'm not sure
I already completed the survey and just needed to do it again to get to the resources!	I'm not sure
I already do and use everything from the program	I'm not sure

i already knew but ask first	i'm not too sure
I already knew how to respect consent, but it was good for others.	I'm really glad I did get to see this today because other students from 6th grade saw it before I was at westtown and I've been hoping it'd come back. I'd give them the rundown of all the bulletin points
I already knew it all.	I'm to tired to think
I already knew most of the things, but to not gender specify sexual assault victims	I'm unsure
I already knew most of this stuff and utilized it especially because i'm a victim.	I've learned how common sexual assault may be.
I already knew most things before today's presentation	Id describe it as very enlightening
I already know this but I am going to continue to make sure the person 100% wants and is ok with whatever is going on. I will make sure their comfortable and respected.	Id just bring up the main points and share the book!
I already learned this before	id summarize it for them
I already new all this stuff it's sad that others didn't and still don't and constantly giggled in the crowd especially when mentioned specifically gender and sexual identities	Id tell them about the center of respect, and give them rescources
I already thought like that but it just confirmed my opinion	Id tell them how everyone needs a choice and give a choice to someone who
I already use these skills and make it aware that im there for them	Identifying sexual assault, and what to do
I already used all of these things and never took advantage of anyone or let it happen to anyone else	idk

I am going to always check in on my friends multplie times a night to ensure that they are safe m	If you want to become intimate with someone or kiss them, you need to ask first, since it is hard to tell what they want just from reading body language. Then, respect their answer.
I am going to always confront someone if I believe they may be trying to sexually assult someone. even if i might be wrong about it, it is important to check	If you want to do something you have to ask for their permission.

I am going to always get consent first	If you want to get down and dirty with someone, get they consent so you not getting in trouble later on
I am going to always intervene when I feel I must	If you want to intervene, answer the question, this is what I am
I am going to always intervene when I see anyone pressured to have sex.	If you want to kiss me or take me out on a date just ask first and just go for it and to be respectful to your friends and family.
I am going to always make sure my partner and I are both having a consensual, amazing experiences.	If you want to make a move with someone you should ask first because you don't know if they are comfortable with it or not
I am going to always make sure that a partner that I am with feels safe and comfortable with anything that we are doing by asking first.	If you went through something there is a community that will help you
I am going to always make sure to ask first, and realize that saying no is not mean.	If you're unsure, just ask. And if you're sure, just ask.

I am going to always respect my partner and their decisions.	If your in doubt ask.
I am going to always say no if I do not ask something.	ifk
I am going to always stand up for people that are in bad situations	Ifk
I am going to always stick up and confront others no matter who they are if I feel that something wrong may happen.	Ikd
I am going to always use the steps to intervene in dangerous situations to do with SA	ill explain that you need to ask for consent first before making any moves
I am going to apply many of the consent and advocacy concepts that I've learned today in my daily life and interactions with others.	Illuminating
I am going to apply myself as a support for others dealing with sexual harassment. When I kiss my girlfriend I will ask for consent, and respect her answer because i understand she has dignity and honor.	im here for you if you are sad
I am going to apply the 4 steps taught to us during the presentation: look the person in the eye, smile, ask the question, and respect the answer. Even if it is weird, showing up to ask that question shows a lot of bravery. In addition, I am going to take the knowledge taught today and see how it relates to what I do and what I don't do in life.	Im not gona rush
I am going to apply the things he says to my own situations.	Im not sure
I am going to apply to is knowledge in situations that I encounter	Im not sure
I am going to apply what I have learned today to my life and my relationships.	im not sure
I am going to apply what I learned in the future.	Im not sure yet
I am going to ask	Imformative and eye opening
I am going to ask	imformative, valuable, necessary
i am going to ask	Impact someone's life in understanding sexual assault
I am going to ask	impactful
I am going to ask	impactful

We are all humans and deserve to be treated as such.
We don't owe any sexual intimacy
We have the right to say no if we don't agree.
We should always ask for consent before going to give someone a kiss.
Well I gained some confidence, and I know I don't owe anyone anything.
Well most important to have more consent for the other person and try to make the right decision
What all the speaker(s) said, basically the whole summary of it.
What consent means.
what he talked abt
What I am going to use from today's program is to stop and think before saying or doing something.
What I am going to use from today's program is to tell loved ones that I am here for them if someone ever does something without their consent.
What I got from today's program was that to ask first rather then going for it which respects the other person's choice.
what i learned
what i learned
What I learned
What I learned
What I learned about consent and asking first.
What I learned about consent and sexual assault, especially about the language we use to excuse sexual assault
What I learned for future situations I.
What I learned to intervene in sexual assault situations
What I took away from today's program was how important values are in a relationship
What I'm going to say or use is if I ever have a partner I will always be a good partner to them
what if both people are drunk
what if both people are drunk
What if we are both DRUNK? Then I won't do anything what im going to use from todays program is that i now how to say no to something or someone that wants to do something with me what is consent, why it's important, how to be an upstander
What it means to be given a choice and what asking for consent actually is.
What Mike taught me of how to respond if someone is not respecting my boundaries
what they told us what to do before
what to do if you see something not right happening

What to do when I see suspicious activity without directly accusing someone.
What to say and do during a situation where a sexual assault may occur.
What to say before some form of intimacy is used and what to say and do for others who may or may not have gone through something similar.
What to say in situations
What to say to people when I need to communicate something.
What to say to someone when in a romantic situation
What to say when someone reveals a horrible event that has happened to them.
What was told to me, to learn to accept a no and also to ask before engaging.
What we learned
What we learned
What we spoke about regarding relationship dynamics
Whatever I can remember from it.
When at social events look out for others.
When dealing with comforting a survivor saying "I'm sorry" displays pity and rather you need to say "Thank you for telling me, you are strong and courageous. How can I help?" Providing a listening ear is something the survivor needs after the traumatizing moment.
When describing sexual assault/rape, use the word/phrase.
When facing a rejection accept their answer.
When I am involved in romantic relationship,I should ask my parter before romantic actions and I have the right to say no
When I can, getting friends to back me up to confront dangerous situations where I might feel nervous to confront alone.
When I feel that someone is in a dangerous situation, I will intervene calmly.
When I get into relationships I will learn yo be more respectful.
When I go to patty's I will make sure assault does not happen
When I have a partner I'm going to set boundaries and make sure they ask me for consent first because I'm not usually comfortable with being touched.
When I have sex
When I know something is wrong, speak on it
When I meet someone who I interest when i see something i will do something to help someone in danger
When I'm in a relationship I will ask before I do anything.
When interacting with my partner and the time has come for a kiss, I will first ask for consent to make sure they're comfortable with it. If they aren't ready, I will be patient with them and give them as much time as they need until they are ready.
When it comes to me having a relationship, knowing my boundaries and knowing how to get over normal conflict
When my friends are sating make sure to remind of them of consent
When no means no, that's the end of the question. If I want to ask why the person said no to better myself ask the next day, not right after.
When people are making sexual jokes
When people are making sexual jokes
When some is trying to sexually assault I will prevent.
When someone ask me to do and i don't want it I'll say no
When someone asks me, I answer honestly (no is not mean).
When someone asks why, the answer is "because I said no"
When someone is unable to make their own decisions because of drugs, alcohol, or simply being too tired you take them back to their house so they can't make any stupid decisions or get themselves hurt.
When someone says no ill respect it
When to back off
When to say no.
When trying to stop an assault, do it with a group of people because it is more affective.
When you ask for consent, you only can do what you asked consent for (if you ask for a kiss, you can't touch them).
When you say no and they ask why say because I said so
Whenever I am hanging out with my friends or with a girl I will practice the strategies discussed and keep in mind the lessons taught.
Whenever I ask a question, I should respect the answer no matter what it is.
Whenever i hear someone has been sexually assaulted, i will always support them and direct them to professional therapy and i will respect them because they are very brave.
Whenever I see someone being assulted, i will stop it with a group of friends respectfully.
Whenever I start dating someone I will make sure to ask before I do anything and tell them to ask before anything as well.
